Welcome to the Organic Materials Review Institute

Founded in 1997, the Organic Materials Review Institute (OMRI) provides organic certifiers, growers, manufacturers, and suppliers an independent review of products intended for use in certified organic production, handling, and processing. OMRI is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization. When companies apply, OMRI reviews their products against the National Organic Standards. Acceptable products are OMRI Listed® and appear on the OMRI Products List. OMRI also provides subscribers and certifiers guidance on the acceptability of various material inputs in general under the National Organic Program.

This resource guide was developed as part of an educational project funded by the Western Region USDA SARE program, based at Utah State University. Grant funds supported 2 satellite broadcasts on organic agriculture (<http://ext.wsu.edu/noas/>) and 4 professional development workshops in California, Oregon and New Mexico in 2003 and 2004. Materials in this guide were developed in support of these educational programs. The editors thank George Kuepper, Renee King, Margaret Scoles, Mark Lipson, Jane Sooby, Harriet Behar, Bill Quarles, Miles McEvoy, and Peter Miller for their insightful reviews and help in constructing and editing the binder and for offering suggestions for improvement. We greatly appreciate their work in seeing the trainings and production of this manual through to completion.
